

User Story:

You've just come back from a long hike in the mountains and while you were there, you came by a strange looking stone. Curious as to what the stone is, you ask your neighbor, who is a Geologist. He tells you that the stone you found was an amethyst. Intrigued by its color and shape, you decide to look up more about the Amethyst. Your neighbor refers you to the site Gemstone Mania and on the site, you learn that the Amethyst is a kind of quartz and can be quite valuable, depending on the quality. You decide to look up even more gems and become fascinated with the many types.